A Report on Workshop on “Research Methodology”

Objective of conducting workshop:

- To make students learn and interact with renowned industry experts.
- Make students to receive an unparalleled education on the art of Research methodology with personal one on one interaction.
- To make every student an expert in research methodology which would be very useful for developing their own research projects.

Meaning of research:

The research is a process of which a person observes the phenomena again and again and collects the data and on the basis of data he draws some conclusions. According to George J. Mouly He defines research as, “The systematic and scholarly application of the scientific method interpreted in its broader sense, to the solution of social studies problems; conversely, any systematic study designed to promote the development of social studies as a science can be considered research.”

According to C.C. Crawford He writes that “Research is simply a systematic and refined technique of thinking, employing specialized tools, instruments, and procedures in order to obtain a more adequate solution of a problem than would be possible under ordinary means. It starts with a problem, collects data or facts, analysis these critically and reaches decisions based on the actual evidence. It evolves original work instead of mere exercise of personal. It evolves from a genuine desire to know rather than a desire to prove something. It is quantitative, seeking to know not only what but how much, and measurement is therefore, a central feature of it.”

Objective of research:

The purpose of research is to find answer to questions through the application of scientific procedures. The main aim of the research is to find out the truth which is hidden which has not been discovered as yet. Though each research study as it own purpose, we may think of research objective falling into a number of following broad grouping:

1. researches whose objectives are theoretical formulate the new theories, principles or laws. Such type of research is explanatory because it explains the relationships of certain variables. These researches contribute some basic knowledge to the human knowledge.

2. researches whose objective is factual find out new facts. This objective is by nature descriptive. These researches describe facts or events which happened previously. Such type of research is done in history.

3. research having application objective does not contribute a new knowledge in the account of human knowledge but suggests new applications. By application we mean improvement and modification in practice.

REPORT ON “Demand & Supply in the Construction Industry”

The webinar on Demand & Supply in the Construction Industry was conducted on January 5, 2021, at 11:00 AM in collaboration with RICS, School of Built Environment, Amity University, Mumbai. The Civil Engineering Department successfully organizes a Technical Talk or Webinar each academic year to share knowledge with students, particularly in the field of civil engineering. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, this online webinar was held during the odd semester of the academic year 2020-21.

Dr. Sanjay Govind Patil, Ph.D., MRICS, recipient of the Best Teacher Award for the academic year 2013-14 at CCE, Oman, and Dean and Director of RICS, School of Built Environment, Amity University, Mumbai, delivered the technical talk. His presentation focused on the initiatives taken by the Government of India and abroad in the construction industry, highlighting the significant gap between the demand for professionals and their availability. This gap is primarily due to professionals not being equipped with the right skills. This webinar presented a valuable opportunity for civil engineering students to acquire essential knowledge and enhance their skills to become suitable for the construction industry.
